

At Locus, we have been front line software users and analysts. We have been software trainers and IT managers. We have been project managers and policy writers. We have been software developers and a local partner to overseas companies. We understand these many perspectives and how they interact on technology projects. Now we offer that experience on an independent basis to make Bermuda-based projects as successful as possible.

We are focused on excellence and honesty.

We are personable, friendly and widely respected among our clientele.

We know our industries well, on an international level, and always provide honest assessment that benefits the client above all else.

Contact us now for initial reactions to your project.